Napier [Ahuriri in Maori] is a port city in Hawke's Bay, New Zealand.
It has a population of 58,600
as of June 2010
Hawke's Bay is the leading Chardonnay and red wine producing area in New Zealand.
Hawke's Bay is the largest crossbred wool centre
in the Southern Hemisphere and also the largest exporter of apple, pear and stone fruit in the country.
Napier has become the leading Art Deco City
in the world arising from the earthquake on February 3rd 1931.

If you wish to extend your visit to this wonderful region and enjoy this city visit the web sites.
